

Sound Insulation CPD Seminar

Integrated Acoustics have been testing for compliance with Part E (Sound) of the Building Regulations in apartments and houses for over 7 years. Over this time our acoustic consultants have built up a wealth of experience and knowledge as to the pitfalls to avoid and how best to design for optimum sound insulation performance.

Integrated Acoustics have developed a CPD seminar which is designed to give architects a succinct yet comprehensive overview of sound insulation for residential dwellings. The title of the first seminar is Acoustics and Sound Insulation for New Residential Houses and Apartments.

The topics covered in this seminar include:

- The types of noise in homes; airborne and impact sound
- An overview of Part E of the building regulations
- How to test for and certify compliance with building regulations
- The weaknesses in relation to current regulations
- Most common complaints acoustic consultants hear from tenants
- Design principles for increased sound insulation

The seminar has been certified by the RIAI CPD Network Panel and has been described as being "a useful and informative presentation". One hour of RIAI CPD credit will be given to each attendee of the course.
